Pennington stylist takes on New York Fashion Week

Thursday, September 30, 2010

Pennington's Darlene Baldachino, along with Nicole Eventoff, both stylists at Sydney Albert Salon and Spa work with Project Runway Designers at Unite Unveiled New York Fashion Week show.

Who says the suburbs can't be as stylish as the City!

Princeton, Mercer County and Sydney Albert Salon and Spa made a major statement in the world of fashion during New York Fashion Week earlier this month.

Sydney Albert Salon's Nicole Cyrese Eventoff and Darlene Baldachino made the runway glow, as the Unite Unveiled NYFW Fashion Show, hosted by TV personality and former Miss USA, Ali Landry. The show featured three of the top emerging designers from the hit television show Project Runway, on Bravo Television - Jesus Estrada, Althea Harper and Gordana Gehlhausen.

Nicole and Darlene were a perfect "Sydney Albert" team, with Nicole styling the tresses of the Estrada models, while Darlene worked her makeup artistry on the Harper and Gehlhausen models. Nicole and Darlene have trained with Unite Eurotherapy team and have extensive experience utilizing the full line of Unite products at Sydney Albert.

"As founder and owner of Sydney Albert, I could not be more proud of Nicole and Darlene, although I can't say I am surprised," said Lauren Albert. "I believe our team of stylists and artists are among the best around, and Nicole and Darlene represented that during Fashion Week. Nicole and Darlene let the world in on a little secret – You can receive a New York Fashion Week worthy style at an affordable price without leaving the cozy confines of Princeton, NJ.
